Love is Caring for Others

Kamlesh comes from a very poor family. When her father failed to grow crops in the village, he had to sell two acres of fertile land to pay off his debts. Then, along with him and the rest of the family, Kamlesh migrated to Mumbai.

Kamlesh, who had studied until Class 5 in the village, began to work in a factory that produced spare parts and was paid Rs20 per day. However, she dreamt of studying again.

Fortunately, she was contacted by an organisation that helped children. They held special classes for children like Kamlesh.

After convincing her father with great difficulty, she finally got herself enrolled in a school in Mumbai . Today, she is the only girl in her extended family to have passed Class 8! She is living her dream each day and she plans to become a fashion designer.

She also educates young girls in her community and encourages them to improve their lives by studying and learning a skill. Kamlesh's example inspired her brother; he is studying hard to finish his degree. She also makes her mother proud by helping her take care of the family.

She has re-written her own future and the future of her brother as well, thanks to her friends from the NGO who reached out to her.

LOVE AND TRUST HOLD FRIENDS TOGETHER.

Summary of the chapter

The writer George Sands has expressed his views on the importance of love in one's life and how it can change everything for better.

He also emphasizes on the need to choose our friends wisely, for they are the ones who encourage us all the time and stand by our side through thick and thin.

Here is a story of a girl named Kamlesh who belongs to a very poor family. When her father fails to grow crops in the village, he sells his fertile land to pay off his debts and moves to the city to earn a livelihood.

On reaching there Kamlesh starts working in a factory in return for a little wage, while after that she got in touch with the NGO and continued her studies .With the help of the NGO she becomes the only member of her family to pass Class 8.

She also encouraged her brother and other girls in the community to study hard and reach out to their goals. Moreover, she makes her mother proud by helping her with the household chores. This is how with the help and support of the NGO she changes her life for a better tomorrow. Thus, this story teaches us that love and trust hold friends together who help us build a better life not only for us but for all others around us.
