To grow the fruit and vegetables for us to eat;

We'd like to say,
"Thank you very much."
The policemen, they dress in uniform and hat.
If they see us being naughty, they say, "Don't do that."

We'd like to say,
"Thank you very much."

Summary of the chapter

There are many people who help us all through the day, about whom we remain quite unaware and take them for granted. They are our cleaners, our bus drivers, policemen, postmen, security guards, hawkers, electricians, gardeners and many others. Everyone works very hard, and all of them touch our lives. We can make their lives more pleasant if we appreciate their work and are polite and respectful to them, as they are the ones who protect us from the hardships that come our way in our daily lives. So, from this chapter we learn that we should always be thankful to our helpers and appreciate them for their efforts.

Answer the questions given below:-

1. What do you learn from this chapter?
2. How can you show respect to your helpers?
