Topic- Chapter3: Respect for Nature

*Instructions: Parents to ensure that the child reads and understands the chapter well, and then answers the questions given below:-

We have all heard about WWF but know little about it. Many people in the world are concerned about the environment and everyone does different things to improve the situation.

In 1961, many influential and wealthy people started the World Wildlife Fund for Nature (WWF). It is an International Non-Governmental Organisation that works with conservation, research and restoration of the environment.

It is working to stop further damage of Earth and to build a future in which humans can live in harmony with Nature. WWF concentrates on forests, freshwater ecosystems, oceans and coastlines. It also supports work involving endangered species of animal and plant life, pollution and climate change.

The "logo" or symbol of WWF is a picture of Chi Chi, the Giant Panda- the famous black and white bear from China that is an endangered animal.

While the concern of WWF is the environment and endangered wild animals globally, there are other smaller organisations that take care of domestic animals in distress in towns and cities. They provide shelter, food and medical care for lost or abandoned pets and are funded by well-wishers and animal lovers.

For children who are interested in animals and Nature, there are many interesting programmes to view on television.

Summary of the chapter

We all come from nature and so should respect it and preserve it at any cost. WWF is an international non-government organisation that works with conservation, research and restoration of the environment. The organization concentrates on forests, freshwater ecosystems, oceans and coastlines; and also supports work involving endangered species of animal and plant life. Apart from WWF other smaller organisations work for the same cause. Everyone should work together to make the world a better place to live in.

The moral of the story is: - Every individual should love and protect all creatures on the planet.

Answer the questions given below:-

1. Name the organisation that works for the conservation of the environment?
2. What do you learn from this chapter?
